THE WITCHES' POT
TO CURB REDS, HIRE THEM
NORDICS ON RAMPAGE
THE PSYCHIC BID

THE POT with MacBeth's
witches dancing around it, was boiling merrily, compared with the political pot in Washington. Every Democrat has his candidate, "the only one that can be elected." Slogans and catchwords are flying,
much thicker than the leaves in Valombrosa.

THOSE that want Gov. Ritchie of Maryland say: "Get rich with Ritchie."

One Hiram Johnson enthusiast
sends a beautifully printed green card, referring to the unemployment situation, and urging: Elect Hiram, and let him hire 'um."

FRIENDS of Newton D. Baker
quote, enthusiastically, his statement: "Bread, more than beer, will be the great issue in 1932." They say this slogan will bring many votes in the south. It does not want a wet Democrat, whereas the north wants one dripping. His "bread, more than beer" remark is a middle-of-the-road slogan for a wet-dry candidate.

Mr. Baker, by no means an avowed candidate, looks at you in wide-eyed surprise if you suggest
it. He thinks Mr. White is entitled to Ohio's support.

MANY WORKMEN hope that,
before 1932, the bread question will have been solved, especially as this government has enough wheat on hand to supply bread for everybody, and farmers can supply more indefinitely. Also, some workers would like to have a glass of beer
with their bread, and say, brazenly:
"If that be vice, make the most of it."

HIRAM JOHNSON really and truly is no candidate, for he understands politics, and knows that President Hoover will be renominated. Still, miracles have happened.

All Washington is interested in a poll taken in the northwest, which shows Gov. Roosevelt at the head of the list in a straw vote,
with former Gov. Alfred E. Smith
No. 2 among all presidential candidates.

It was not to be expected that the 15,000,000 and more that voted for Gov. Smith last time would suddenly lose interest.

"PATRIOTIC, CIVIC, church
and labor organizations" met in the Army and Navy club in New York city yesterday, to devise plans for "curbing reds." There is one good plan for curbing reds and there isn't any other. That plan is to give work to men that want it,
relief from anxiety, harassing taxation, and uncertainty to the industrialists and business men
whose enterprises provide work,
prosperity and happiness.

TO "DISCOURAGE REDS" or any other radical dissatisfaction,
by threats, abuse or compulsion is as foolish as trying to discourage gunpowder by throwing lighted matches into it.

tation of the Italian Fascists, are

CHARITY DRIVE PLEDGES MOUNT; SEE $1,000 FUND

Association Heads Confident Mark Will Be Reached Soon

CHECK SHOWS $712
ALREADY ON HAND

Theaters Will Entertain
Children Free On December 24

A total of $712 was pledged to the Salem Associated Charities by ten of the city's fraternal, civic and social organizations, gathered together in a meeting at the Elks home, East State st., Tuesday night,
in preparation of plans for a Christmas welfare work.

Expect Fund of $1,000
A large number of families will be provided aid by the Associated Charities as a result of contributions from the affiliated organizations while additional donations,
expected within the next 10 days,
are expected to bring the unit's fund to more than $1,000.

Salem lodge No. 306, B. P. O.
Elks and Salem lodge No. 571,
Loyal Order of Moose, led the list
in contributions, each order pledging $200 to the charities fund while Quaker City Aerie No. 316, F. O.
Eagles, contributed $150 to the cause.

Other contributors were Charles
H. Carey post No. 56, American Legion; Knights of Pythias, Eastern Stars, Local No. 222, American Federation of Musicians, American Legion auxiliary, Maccabee lodge
and Daughters of Union Veterans.

Masonic Party Dec. 18

Additional funds will be obtained
by the organization from a benefit dance planned by Masons at the ballroom, East State st., Friday night, December 18. Donations from several other clubs and orders are pending also. Charities officials said.

N. I. Walken of the State and Grand theaters appeared at the meeting, announcing that one or both of the playhouses will be opened between 10 a. m. and 12 noon on December 24, the day before Christmas, at which all children of the city will be guests. Special talking picture productions will be shown for entertainment.

Musicians Helping
John W. Hundertmark, director of the Quaker City band announced that the Salem Musicians union is cooperating with the city's organizations in the charity drive, members contributing services for all benefit dances. Members of orchestras here have been called on to donate services for two dances
already this month while at least three additional benefit functions
are planned.

He also announced that the Quaker City band, combined with the Salem High band, plan a series of benefit concerts at the Memorial building early next year.

German Wages, Rents, Prices Slashed in Drastic Decree

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, Dec. 9.—The German
sword of threatened martial law
hung today over the heads of Adolf Hitler and other opposition
forces in Germany.

Dr. Heinrich Brüning, scholar-chancellor and "man of iron," delivered the warning in a radio addressing last night which followed signing by President Paul von Hindenburg of a new and drastic emergency decree which slashed wages,
prices and rents in the nation.

Branded As Dictator

This morning the Communist newspaper "Rote Fahne"—red flag
—took up the chancellor's challenge, branded him as a "dictator"
and appealed to the masses of the people to call a general strike on Dec. 15 in protest against the "dictatorship" and the wage cuts.

The emergency decree was designed to provide the final wind-up for what Dr. Brüning called "the deflation period imposed upon Germany."

It orders wage scales cut to the level of January, 1927. It forbids the wearing of uniforms of any kind, such as the Hitler brown
shirts and the Communist red, except in private homes. It slashes physicians' fees. It empowers all state authorities to demand the surrender of all firearms and limits
traffic in blackjacks and "similar weapons."

Mellon Sends Rate Plan to Congress

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The administration tax increase plan hits almost everybody and seeks to apply on this year's incomes.

Secretary Mellon forwarded it to congress today, calling for increased rates on personal and corporation incomes, inheritances, tobacco and capital stock sales.

New levies would be imposed on automobiles, radios, telephone, telegraph and cable messages, amusement tickets, checks and drafts and realty sales. Postal charges would be boosted.

Exemptions from income taxes
would be lowered to include 1,700-000 new individuals within the scope of the federal levy.

Backed By Hoover
The secretary of the treasury—
backed by President Hoover—recommended the plan to take effect
next month and terminate in June 1934. With $1,310,000,000 to be raised by it in the coming 18
months, he termed the legislation
necessary to meet "a real emergency."

He renewed the administration
suggestion that trade area banking be adopted for National banks as "a solution, in a large measure, of our present banking difficulties." He challenged arguments that banking should be confined to political "or other existing artificial boundaries rather than to its natural economic lines."

The added taxes would begin on passage of the bill. As to incomes
the following scale would be in force for payments next March:

Now one and a half per cent of
net income up to $4,000, up to 2
per cent.

Now paying 3 per cent on the second $4,000, up to 4 per cent
paying 5 per cent on net income
above $8,000, up to 6 per cent.

Surplus Up to 40 Per Cent
Surtaxes would start at 1 per cent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—An administration recommendation for raising taxes on a widespread basis
went today to congress, where it at once met Democratic resistance.

President Hoover and Secretary Mellon joined in presenting a dismal story of federal finances.

Along with a budget verging on $4,000,000,000, the President detailed the need of meeting a deficit
that promises to exceed that figure by the end of the next fiscal year.

As a way out, Secretary Mellon advocated higher tax rates to take effect next month and apply on this year's incomes.

No sooner had his report reached Capitol Hill than Democrats began attacking it. Indications were the plan would be sidetracked by them in the Democrat-controlled house, where revenue legislation
must originate.

Leaders of the majority forces
there predicted the Democrats
would have a plan of their own ready soon. Preparations were made for an early conference of the party members in both senate and house.

Immediately after the house received the administration proposals,
leaders of the Democratic majority registered opposition.

Representative Rainey, party floor leader, and Chairman Collier of the ways and means committee said the Democrats soon would present their own plan.

District Burglaries

ARRESTS MADE BY
DEPUTY DONAHAY

Franklin Square Couple
Are Arrested In Canton

Eugene Dorsay, 21, of Salem, arrested in Detroit, Mich., at the request of Columbiana county authorities, was being held in Salem city jail today, charged with breaking and entering as a result of his alleged participation in a series of burglaries in Damascus and vicinity.

Dorsay will be taken to the county jail at Lisbon this afternoon for arraignment before the next grand jury. Mr. and Mrs. Orville Whinnery, aged 23 and 33, of Franklin Square, are now in the Lisbon jail awaiting grand jury action.

Trio Pleads Guilty

Whinnery is facing a breaking
and entering charge while his wife
is charged with receiving and concealing stolen property.

Pleas of guilty were entered by the trio in preliminary arraignment
before Justice of Peace Harry Weikert in Damascus. They were bound to the grand jury on $1,900
bond each.

Dorsay was taken to Damascus
this morning by Deputy Sheriff C.
E. Donahay of Damascus who also arrested Mr. and Mrs. Whinnery.
Their arrest followed investigations
conducted by Donahay into a series of burglaries occurring in stores in the Damascus district for the past two months.

Specific breaking and entering charges were filed against Dorsay
and Whinnery after they are said
by Donahay to have admitted entering the Samuel Brand store on the Damascus-Valley rd. on October 12, and the Youngling gasoline filling station, North Benton rd., northwest of Salem, in November.

Merchandise Recovered

A large quantity of merchandise,
part of which was recovered by Donahay when he arrested Mr. and Mrs. Whinnery in Canton yesterday, was stolen in the two burglaries.

Additional charges may also be filed against them, Donahay reported, the two men being suspected of being involved in at least six other minor thefts.

In Congressional Spotlight

Here are a few of the notable figures that came into the spotlight with the opening of the 72d United States congress. Top panel shows Representative Henry Rainey (left), of Illinois, floor leader of the Democratic party in the House, giving a "handshake before the battle" to Bertrand Snell, of New York, his opponent floor leader of the Republican party. Lower left is Representative John N.
Garner, of Texas, who is the new speaker and a Democrat, shown wielding the gavel for the first time. Lower right is Mrs. Hatlie Caraway, only woman member of the Senate. Mrs. Caraway is senator from Arkansas, having been appointed as the successor to her husband, the late Thaddeus Caraway (D.). Mrs. Caraway expressed a preference for the title "Mrs." over that of "Senator."

Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther Facing Sentence of Life in Prison

(By Associated Press)
WOOSTER, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, 24, confessed killer of Mrs. Clara Smith, Ashtabula, escaped death in the electric chair today when common pleas judge, George A. Starn returned a verdict of first degree murder, with mercy.

The verdict requires sentence of life imprisonment.
Judge Starn promptly sentenced
Mrs. Lowther to life imprisonment
in Marysville reformatory.

Before giving the verdict, Judge Starn spoke for 45 minutes in the courtroom. He reviewed Mrs.
Lowther's past life, and pointed out the unfortunate environment
of her early years. He declared the crime of killing Mrs. Smith had been planned by her husband, Tilby, rather than by Mrs. Low-ther. Tilby Smith was electrocu-ted Nov. 20, for his part in the crime.

Lenz Boosts Lead to 2,075 In 2nd Tilt of Bridge Series

Culbertson Characterizes Strategy So Far As Mainly Defensive, A Retreat; Expects Better Cards
and Eventual Turn of Tide

BY TOM O'NEIL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Sidney S.
Lenz, who is universally acknowledged to have no superior as a player of contract bridge, has said
that all bidding systems are fundamentally alike and that victory is 75 per cent play and 25 per cent
system.

He and his partner, Oswald Jacoby, believe the statement has been proved by the first ten rubbers of their 150-rubber challenge match with Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

When the second session of the match adjourned early today, to resume tomorrow night, Lenz and Jacoby were 2,075 points in the lead, a gain of 360 points over the plus acquired in the first session.
Of ten rubbers played in the series,
Lenz and Jacoby have won seven,
the Culbertsons three.

Culbertson on Defense Culbertson characterized his strategy so far as mainly defensive,
a retreat. He believes his opponents have had the better cards and the tide will turn.

Lenz in the second session made
the only slam of the series so far,
a little one, duly contracted. The bidding would probably have been
the same under either system.
To neutralize an instance of comparative play was the fact that once

A Salem gasoline station atten-

suffering from injuries sustained when bandits attacked him in an attempted holdup of the Pennzell
company station, South Lincoln ave., at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Joseph Swetye, 30, of 308 W. Third st., was the victim of the bandits' attack. He is suffering from severe bruises about the forehead and scalp and lacerations about the face.

Two Holdups In District

It was one of two holdups occurring in the Salem district within 24 hours. M. M. Moore, East Liverpool truck driver, being held up
by two armed men at 6:30 a. m.
today as he was enroute to this city with a truckload of groceries.
The truck was looted of the merchandise.

Preparing to close the station for the night, Swetye was attacked suddenly from the rear. One of the bandits struck him over the head
with a blunt instrument, believed by doctors to have been either a hammer or the butt of a revolver.
Failing to render him unconscious,
the bandits continued their attack,
striking him on the forehead, then
in the mouth.

Swetye told police that he continued to resist the attack, then began shouting for help. The shouts apparently frightened the men
away, both escaping from the station before the attendant was able to obtain even a glimpse of them.
The station, he said, was in darkness.

Police Are Called

The bandits left the station without attempting to loot the cash register or ransack the place. Swetye made his way to a nearby residence
from which he called police, Chief Thompson and Patrolman William Reardon responding.

Other members of the police force were called by Thompson to assist in the search for the band-
its, without result.

Swetye was taken to the hospital
this morning where he is reported in an improved condition. He will recover, physicians say.

STUDENT PLAY OPENS TONIGHT

"The Goose Hangs High"
Is Title of Senior
Production

Featuring a cast composed of 13
students, the annual senior class play, "The Goose Hangs High," will be given its premiere at the Salem High school auditorium at 8:15 tonight and will be presented again Thursday night. Proceeds will be donated to the Salem High School Alumni association scholarship fund.

The play, directed by Miss Mary Lanpher, is a three-act comedy,
with roles by Camille Hopperich,
Selma Liebschner, Raymond Reich,
Russell Fitzpatrick, Jack Carpenter,
Loren Battin, Mary Louise Miller,
Mary Campbell, LaVerda Capel,
John Paul Ollman, Lionel Smith,
Mary Louise Scullion and Clarence Walker.

The attempt of an average American family to venture into high society and resultant complications, depicted in humorous manner, form the plot of the comedy. Approximately 1,100 tickets had been sold for the play up until noon today.

STATE OF THE UNION

It is the lot of the president to do formally what many others constantly are doing informally—to regard the union carefully and draw up a report on its state.

The report transmitted to the 72nd congress Tuesday by Mr. Hoover was distinctly cheerful, in contrast to the calamitous tone employed by those who apparently enjoy believing that everything is as bad as it possibly could be and will not get better. The President recognizes frankly certain unfavorable conditions affecting the state of the union, but he does not give himself up to despair.

He repeats what has come to be a fundamental argument in his discussion of the depression in the United States—that there is a world-wide economic depression and that the United States is one of the least harassed of all its victims. Despite his insistence that his countrymen should not feel themselves singled out for special affliction, however, the depression will continue to be concentrated in this country, according to the American business viewpoint. Germany, England, France—they have their troubles and each trouble is borne without assistance by American business men. Much talk about international viewpoints has done its work. The world is in sad condition and Americans can't forget it.

But President Hoover wants them to forget it long enough to consider the state of the union where "we find fundamental gains even amid depression. A finer sense of community cooperation has been developed; social and spiritual responsibility has been enlarged and better methods and policies in business have been forced into being. The business of living and the natural evolution of a sound nation, in short, have gone forward about as usual—in many respects better than usual because they have improved from the necessity to overcome obstacles. Furthermore, when the depression is over there will be, in addition to improved methods and spirit, vast public improvements made as part of the contribution of government for the relief of unemployment.

In the handling of its foreign affairs the government has a good record for the year. It has not broken the peace and it has utilized the means at hand to avert disasters abroad.

Mr. Hoover mentions specifically in his report his opinions on unemployment, wages, credit and banking, federal finances, railways, the tariff and the dollar.

He makes no recommendation to relieve unemployment further than has been done. His opinion is that the nation is doing as much as possible; that further help can be given only by improved conditions. He is, of course, unalterably opposed to the dollar.

He hedges slightly on wages, commenting that high wages have saved the nation from "industrial conflict and disorder which have characterized all previous depression," but abandoning his former position, now untenable that there should be no wage reduction.

He believes "we must put some steel beams in the foundations of our credit structure." This must be done to "establish confidence and thus restore the flow of credit which is the very basis of our economic life." The first "beam" is financial stability of the government itself which incurred a deficit of $900,000,000 last year and which, he predicts, will incur a deficit of $1,417,000,000 this year. He allows for stringent reduction in federal expenditures in his estimate; there probably will be no such economy for which he hopes. Liberal spending is more likely to be the slogan of the new congress.

Financial stability will depend upon the increased taxation that

STAND BACK

Mr. Hoover recommends. In his opinion there should be a temporary increase sufficient to balance the budget for 1933, except for the statutory debt retirement. In other words, taxes should not be increased sufficiently to bring the government entirely over to the right side of the ledger, but only halfway. Remaining funds required should be obtained by borrowing. No point in the President's legislative program is more important than this one.

Home loan discount banks and a reconstruction finance corporation are his recommendations to bolster credit and banking. The Finance Corporation, like the tax increase, should be temporary. Mr. Hoover is looking ahead to the second term he hopes to get—perhaps to the first term some other candidate will get.

He reiterates his well-known opinion that railways should have "more effective opportunity to reduce operating costs by power consolidation." Completing service should be regulated. Most important, perhaps, congress should quit beating round the bush and take action. Mr. Hoover is inviting trouble when he proposes motor bus regulation and railway consolidation, and he probably knows it.

In concluding, he states that he is opposed to any general congressional revision of the tariff. Decreases are out of the question, because wages and standards of living abroad have been materially lowered. It is fortunate, he assures the country, that the tariff commission exists to make any increases which may be necessary to "protect agriculture and industry from lowered foreign costs."

There is nothing startling new in President Hoover's message. His admission that a tax increase will be necessary was assured weeks ago, though announcement has been withheld up to this time. His other opinions, active and settled, all were anticipated. The proposed reconstruction Finance Corporation is another stabilization corporation; anticipation, unless discouraged, will grow to be a thousand times greater than realization possibly could be.

The report will be criticized. There will be disagreement, for one reason or another, with its recommendations. Democrats and "progressives" will try to destroy it with their programs, which may be characterized more by their scope than their wisdom. President Hoover, because he holds the responsibility of administering the government, cannot afford to mislead the public by false promises and inflated optimism. In reporting the state of the union he has performed his duty and performed it acceptably, according to his own and his party's convictions, which are the convictions of actual experience, whatever else they may be in the opinion of critics.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, Dec. 10

Although the stellar influences for this day seem to foster and advance fresh undertakings, assisting to favorable negotiations with combines, mergers, close corporations or secret societies, nevertheless there is augury of some rash, impetuous and disagreeable activity as well as a menace of treachery, fraud or misrepresentation. Also there is some peril in the handling of funds. With discretion and calm judgment all may be turned to advantage.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of favorable conjunctions with large corporations, combines or secret bodies. But stratagem and diplomacy will advance the interests far better than indulging a tendency to rash, impulsive misrepresentation and trickery. A child born on this day may be keen, energetic, quick in thought and action, and perhaps disposed to be impulsive and hasty to its detriment, unless disciplined in this regard in infancy.

What Others Say

THE CHILD AND HIS MONEY

The General Federation of Women's Clubs has recently brought to its members' attention the importance of financial training for children. Clubs and study groups have been urged to include the topic, "The Child and His Money," in their regular programs and to study it carefully. It also is suggested that the clubs organize junior study groups where young people might meet to discuss financial problems and receive instruction in finance from capable teachers.

But fathers and mothers of young children are not neglected. For parents desirous of guiding their children along the devoted path of finance a booklet issued by the General Federation of Women's Clubs gives a summary of what experts consider the best method of financial training for children, and a list of more than 20 authoritative modern books on the subject.

On the first page of this booklet is the observation: "How often, regardless of sacrifice and expense, we see that children are taught music, literature, art; how carefully we supervise their behavior to fit them for their sphere in life; how zealously we watch them in their study of science and mathematics, but we neglect any training in the handling of money, notwithstanding this is a knowledge which every responsible individual must put into practice."

Many people are unaware of the purpose of women's clubs. To the question frequently arising—"What worth-while activities are accomplished by club members?"—the attempt by the General Federation of Women's Clubs to help parents solve the perplexities of financial guidance for children is one answer. —Christian Science Monitor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Manhattan's famed extravaganzas these days are confined solely to those lavish side street mansions to which after midnight magnificents drift for wassail. Once private homes as sedately stiff as their high-backed hall chairs, they are now mellow with mirth.

Enormous fortunes have been spent to equip them into a splendor no New York restaurant ever achieved. Backers apparently have no fear the expensive trappings will fall under a raiding axe. Incidentally, whispers as to this financing, if true, would shock an already tottering world.

The private residence where Belle Livingston spread her aura of "continental culture" for such a fleeting period, has been done over. A foremost decorator was given carte blanche to flout it up. A backgammon room in onyx and pink marble gives a faint idea.

Joe Zelli, Italian entrepreneur, was imported from his dance hall on a Montmartre peak to conduct "The Royal Box," the highest tariffed night spot on either side of the Atlantic. "The Five O'clock Club," directed by the celebrated John and Cristo, is like an imported slice of the Riviera. Too, The Bath Club.

Also Lou Schwartz's "Mansion." In boom days spenders were content to gather in basement dining rooms where patrons buzzed a push button and asked for Louie. They were dim lit, smelly and pungent with the effluvia of garlic and other highly seasoned dishes.

But with the economic eclipse such hide-aways dried up like rain drops on the Sahara. In their stead four and five storied private residences were slit into soft carpeted salons, hung with rich tapestries, costly canvases and crystal dripping chandeliers.

Now and then they are politely invaded, a bottle of "cooking sherry" is carried away, bows are exchanged and business goes on as usual. One of the spots has a special dog checking room, highly sanitized and with silk cushions for Pekes and Poms.

Incidentally, Thyra Samter Winslow, the novelist, carries a fawn-colored Peking with her wherever she goes. Even to the theater. And she does not trust it to checkers. It nestles under her arm so obscurely it is rarely seen.

General Pershing's phone chimed at his New York hotel room around 3 a. m. the other day. A rather hiccup gentleman explained: "General, I just want to apologize for losing the Lost Battalion Pleasant dreams, sir."

A Broadway thrift story concerns Bill Robinson who tap dances up and down an arch of stairs. To do his bit during the depression he is now merely sliding down the banisters.

Recently I sat across aisle from an international gigolo watching Gilbert Miller's stinging expose of those sly bunnies circling about the Place Vendome. In hilarious moments when stage filaneurs were confessing their sins I expected him to squirm and express himself in dry little laughs. Instead, he seemed most vastly amused of all. But his rich wife sat tense and if my eyes did not deceive — a little white.

The other evening I saw blonde May Murray, draped in a clinging creation of moonbeam satin, for the first time in several years. Until her identity was confirmed by Bert Lytell, at the same table, I was unconvinced. She had the dewy freshness and vivacity of a 19-year-old flapper. Yet she was the toast of cabarets and dancing at San Souci when I emerged from mid-west towns into New York 20 years ago. She had a frisk of windblown hair, a wand-like figure and a peach complexion. Her dancing expressed the lightness of a floating feather — the whimsical elfin grace that distinguished her when the Midnight Frolic's overhead runway of glass was the talk of the town.

Fanny Ward, at the same gathering, remains, however, leading contender for eternal flapperdom. She is past 60, many years Miss Murray's senior, but the stranger would never guess it. Whenever I see Miss Ward—and that is every time I'm out after dark—I have an urge to hunt up a shovel and pail and romp her off to a sand pile.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, young and comely orphan, is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy young business man. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, handsome young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim starts her by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married, she asks them to take back their presents. After working late, Mark Nesbit takes Mary Faith to dinner and home to her boarding house in his car. Slowly Mary Faith learns to live her life without Kim. When Mark Nesbit injures his ankle, Mary Faith is driven to his country home to take dictation. She meets his mother and enjoys the charming home life of the Nesbits. Jean Bartlett, Mary Faith's office friend, laughingly tells her she should marry Mark Nesbit.

CHAPTER XI

"I may go down to the office tomorrow," he told her at the end of the afternoon. "I can get around pretty well now with a cane; and I'd like to be on the job just now at the close of the year."

Mary Faith shook her head. "Oh, I think you ought to wait for a few days before you try it, Mr. Nesbit. The stairs in the building are so steep and the floors are so slippery."

But the next morning when she got down to the office there was a light burning behind the frosted-glass pane in his door.

"Great Galusha's back on the job this morning, Miss Pention," Stanley Odealk told her, looking up from the typewriter that he was using. "Gee, if I was my own boss, the way he is, I bet I wouldn't come down to work on a cane! I'd stay home for another month."

At half past nine exactly the buzzer on Mary Faith's desk sounded. She got up and carried the morning mail into Mark Nesbit's office, just as she had carried it in to him at half past nine every morning for years.

It was on the tip of her tongue to say to him: "Well, you made it, I see! But you know you ought to have stayed at home."

All she did say, however, was "Good morning, Mr. Nesbit," just as she had always said it, in a polite office voice.

"Good morning, Mary Faith," he smiled at her gravely as he picked up one of the envelopes that she laid before him on the desk. "Will you please ask Bassett to come up in about ten minutes?"

Everything was just as it always had been. Like magic both of them clicked back into the well-oiled office machinery of the Nesbit Mercantile Company.

And yet there was a difference. That noon he came limping into her office and stood beside her desk. He had on his overcoat and his hat and brief-case were in his hand.

"Good-bye, Mary Faith," he said. "Don't work late. Remember it's Saturday. I'm going to miss you at lunch today. We've had some pretty good talks the last couple of weeks, haven't we?"

"Haven't we!" Mary Faith's face flushed with pleasure. "These two weeks have been a holiday for me, but they couldn't have been so very grand for you, shut up in one room most of the time."

She pushed back her chair and got up as he turned to go.

"I'm going to go down to your car with you, if you don't mind," she said. "First thing you know you'll be back in the wheel chair for another two weeks."

Side by side they crossed the office and got into the elevator. Down in the street the big, plum-colored limousine waited. As Mark Nesbit paused beside it, with his foot on the step, he half turned and held one of Mary Faith's hands tightly in his for a second.

"You 'mother' me, don't you, Mary Faith?" he asked, his head bent over hers. "And, do you know, I like it! I do. I think it's fine."

"Great hullion, but you and the boss are getting to be chummy!" Jean Bartlett remarked when she walked into the office two or three minutes afterward. "If this keeps up you'll soon be forgetting Handsome's nailed-down hair and built-up shoulders!"

Late that afternoon when Mary Faith got home there was a long florist's box for her lying on the table in the hall.

"A colored chauffeur—in livery, if you please—brought it here about one o'clock," Mrs. Puckett told her, coming out of the parlor. "There's roses and narcissus in it, by the smell. I never have been able to abide the smell of narcissus since Mr. T's funeral!"

But she stood close by, watching, while Mary Faith opened the box and lifted out the pink roses and stately white narcissus that lay in it.

"There's a card with them, Mary Faith," she said. "The card was a dark purplish-red one—kind of a plum color. I told Mr. McClinch and Mr. Vining that I bet it was your Mr. Nesbit's card."

Mary Faith knew that the flowers were from Mark Nesbit before she drew his card out of the envelope that had been tucked among them. Who else would be sending flowers to her?

Mrs. Puckett read the card over her shoulder. "Humm—he did send them. Well, this begins to look serious, Mary Faith."

"Nonsense, Mrs. Puckett!" Mary Faith said sensibly. "This is just his way of saying 'thanks' for all the extra work I've done for him the last couple of weeks."

Mrs. Puckett sniffed and shrugged her shoulders. "You've done lots of extra work for him long before now, and he never sent you flowers," she pointed out. "And I know that I've done lots of extra work for men folks in my lifetime, too, but not one of them ever sent me a whole box of roses, or even a simple dandelion! He's been lending you books too. I've seen them up in your room with his name written in them. You mark my words, Mary Faith, he means business!"

That was on Saturday. At half past four on the next Friday afternoon, Mark Nesbit came into Mary Faith's little office and sat down on the corner of her desk.

"Mary Faith, do you know what a dinner ring is?" he asked, lighting a cigarette.

She said that she did. "It's a large ring that women wear on their little finger. It's usually made of platinum or white gold and is set with diamonds, I believe. It's a very special kind of ring."

"Well, Judy wants one for Christmas. She says some of her buddies at school have them. But, gosh, wouldn't it be too elaborate for her?"

"She's only fifteen, isn't she?"

"That's true." He nodded and got up from the corner of the desk. "Well will you help me pick out a ring for her then? I'll get my car out of the parking space and meet you downstairs in five minutes."

Outside it was cold and crisp and snowy—perfect holiday weather. By the time Mark Nesbit's car had nosed its way into the crowded shopping district the streets were filled with sapphire dusk and red-and-green festoons of light were shining in the shop windows.

The car was held up for two or three minutes in the traffic at the corner of Spring Street and Sixth. That corner had once been a place of enchantment for Mary Faith because it was there that she had always waited for Kim when she had an engagement with him.

On the next corner stood the City Bank building where he worked. She found herself looking up at the lighted windows of McIntire and Westover on the fifth floor. Kim was probably up there now, winding up his day's work in the offices where he had met that Janet-girl of his.

"I think we'll go to Armbruster's for the ring," Mark Nesbit was saying as he swung his car into the yawning doorway of the Spring Street Garage. "I have a charge account there, haven't I, Mary Faith?"

There were no holly wreaths, no red-and-green lights, in the windows of Armbruster's jewelry store. For Armbruster's prided itself on its exclusiveness and its old-fashioned dignity. It was the oldest store on Spring Street. It never advertised in the newspapers and it never made any holiday display.

"Sometimes I bring my wrist-watch in here to have it regulated," Mary Faith said as they stepped inside. "And just to walk into the place makes me feel like the Queen of Siam."

A salesman in a frock coat and a high wing collar came up to them bowing, as Mary Faith said to herself, scraping. He led them halfway down the center aisle and laid two trays full of glittering rings on the "showcase in front of them."

"Don't you think an aquamarine would be nice for Judy, Mr. Nesbit? Or a white-gold ring with just one or two little diamonds set in it, perhaps?" asked Mary Faith.

She had a sudden, uneasy feeling that someone was watching her. She half turned away from the showcase to look about her—and here, not ten feet from her, stood Kim Farrell!

Kim was leaning over the counter, holding two mesh bags in his hands. Beside him stood a girl whom Mary Faith could not see.

He was not looking at the mesh bags or at the girl. His eyes were on Mary Faith's eyes; and as she watched him he laid the bags down, upon the showcase and came toward her.

"Hello," he said and held out his hand.

"Hello, yourself," Mary Faith never knew how she managed to say those two words in that cheerful, offhand way. She did not touch his hand.

"How are you these days, Mary Faith?"

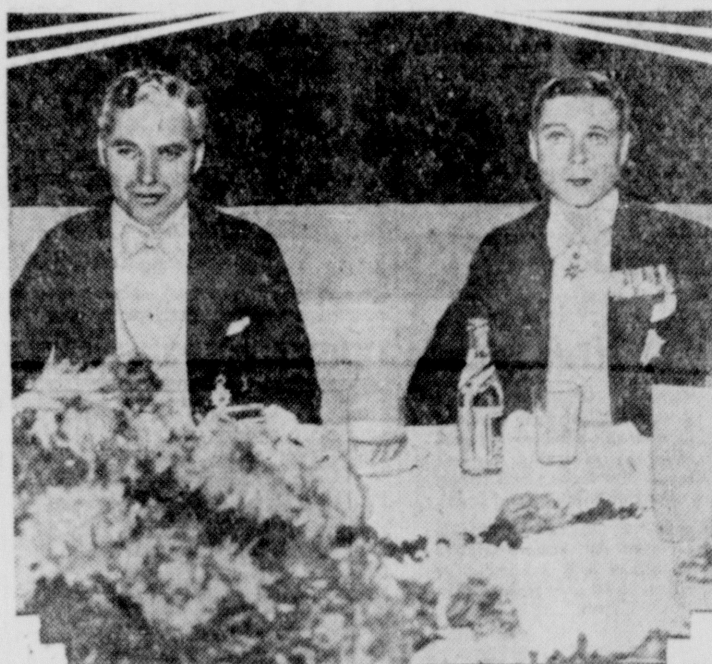

"Oh, I'm all right. I jog along," she answered. With an effort she turned her head away from him, then turned her whole body away.

"Don't you think an aquamarine would be just the thing?" she asked Mark Nesbit again, without clearly knowing what she said.

They finally decided on one. A small square one set in a circle of seed pearls. They waited while it was put into a white velvet box and wrapped up in white-and-silver paper.

Favorite Sons of Britain

Probably nowhere in the realm of the British Empire are there two such popular men, or "favorite sons," as the Prince of Wales and Charles Chaplin, shown attending a dinner party staged in connection with the ice carnival held in London for charity. The famous comedian is apparently fully enjoying himself, but the heir to the British throne looks as if it was "just another of those things."

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

YOUR CHILD AND DISEASE

Most mothers believe that certain diseases of childhood are "natural" and come in the course of events. In fact, I know of cases where the mother has deliberately exposed her children to chicken pox, measles and other common diseases. In the light of present knowledge this is unwise.

All children do not possess the same resistance to disease. Where one child may run a mild case of measles, for instance, another may become seriously ill. The most likely place of infection from these diseases is probably the school room. It is impossible to keep children apart in the classroom and in the playroom. It is easy to see how quickly a child can transmit a disease to his playmate. This may be done even though the first child does not know he is sick or a carrier of dangerous germs.

There are many cases which are transmitted in this fashion. But the danger does not stop here. It may be carried to the home and infect the younger children who do not attend school. The results of spreading a disease in this way are extremely dangerous. Please, remember this: Do not send your children to school if there is any doubt in your mind as to their state of health. Even if it is a simple cold, and especially if the child is coughing, he should not be permitted to go to school.

If all mothers were to observe this rule, there would be fewer cases of coughs, as well as the more serious ailments, particularly influenza and pneumonia. In addition, the common infectious diseases of childhood would be greatly decreased. Your child protects other children by staying home when sick. If all mothers would keep their children home when ill a great deal of unnecessary suffering would be prevented.

Results in Later Life
Above all, it should be remembered that it is not necessary for every child to have the so-called childhood diseases. In fact, the child who has avoided most of the ordinary childhood diseases is more capable of facing the strenuous problems of later life.

Many of the chronic disorders of adult life can be traced to the diseases of childhood. This is particularly true of kidney disease and rheumatism, so commonly seen in middle aged individuals.

Many eye defects, hearing disturbances, as well as grave constitutional disorders can be attributed to some carelessly handed infection during childhood.

The lesson is a severe one. Its prevention should be the aim of every parent. Do not neglect childhood diseases and do not take any unnecessary chances with the health of your dear ones.

Answers to Health Queries
P. R. Q.—Do persons weigh less in summer than in the winter?
A.—Yes. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3.—What should a girl of 17, 4 ft. 11½ in. tall, weigh?
A.—Not as a rule.
2.—Yes. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3.—She should weigh about 100 pounds. This would be about average for her age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons.

Mrs. J. D. Q.—What causes dark brown marks on the skin?
A.—This may be due to liver spots. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

M. J. C. Q.—What causes a sharp pain between the shoulder and elbow?
A.—This is probably due to neuritis. Some infection in the system is usually responsible.

Twenty Years Ago

(Issue of Dec. 9, 1911)

Lisbon—Sixty-three saloons have started in the county since it was voted wet on Nov. 3.

Miss Helen Arter of Hanover-ton won the silver medal in a contest held under the auspices of the Winona W. C. T. U. Friday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church there.

Another drop of 15 points in the wholesale price of sugar was recorded Thursday. Granulated sugar has been retailing at 7 cents per pound. The big dealers expect 3 cent sugar before the first of the year.

After a serious illness of more than two weeks, Charles Redinger, well known citizen of Salem, died Friday night at his home. He leaves a wife and four children.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Moore left Friday evening on a trip through Indiana, Iowa, and Kansas.

Foster Hall of Damascus left Friday for Tunesassa, N. Y., to join his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hall, who are superintendent and matron, respectively of an Indian school.

Dealers to Confer

Spray material dealers of this section will hold a conference on Wednesday evening, Dec. 8. Arrangements for the meeting are being made by County Agents J. C. Hodge and Floyd Lower.

A. L. Pierstorff, plant pathologist, and T. H. Parks, entomologist of Ohio State university, will discuss the uses of the various insecticides and fungicides in the control of insects and diseases.

Summoned by Jury

CINCINNATI, Dec. 9.—Andreas E. Burkhardt, president of a large clothing company, has been subpoenaed to appear before the federal grand jury to explain alleged statements that he had enough information to padlock every hotel, country, golf and city club in Cincinnati.

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 9.—Wittenberg college directors have accepted the resignation of Rev. Dr. L. S. Keyser, professor of systematic theology at the Hamma divinity

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Baalman's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish; and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort.

That growly, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and fingers will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Baalman's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Get the genuine in the yellow package, at any good drug store. Price $1.

NEWS FROM NEARBY DISTRICTS

CHILDRENS' PARTY

The Women's Foreign Missionary society and the Edna Thomas society of the Methodist Episcopal church sponsored a delightful party for the Little Light Bearers Tuesday afternoon at the church. The Little Light Bearers are children up to the age of eight years, and the party is an annual event. This occasion also celebrated the 46th anniversary of the national society.

Mrs. Carl McConner was chairman of the committee which arranged the event. Mrs. Frank Stoudt and Mrs. C. F. Christian are supervisors of the children.

Mothers of the children were guests. Mrs. E. F. Naragon, president of the Women's society, gave the welcome and Mrs. Christian responded. A short program was composed of sacred pantomimes. Norma Miller played a piano solo. Lunch was served. The children were seated at a table and at each place was a lighted candle. Decorations in the church parlor, where the affair was held, were in keeping with the Christmas season.

LOYAL WOMEN'S CLASS

Miss Adda Bonnell was re-elected teacher of the Loyal Women's class of the Christian church at a meeting Tuesday evening at the church. Miss Bonnell has been teacher of this class for about 17 years.

Famous Cough Prescription

Almost instant relief from coughs is now guaranteed in the use of the physicians famous prescription called Thoxine. It works on an entirely different principle; having a double action, it relieves the throat irritation and goes direct to the internal cause not reached by cough syrups and patent medicines and the cough stops like magic, usually with the very first swallow.

Taken before retiring, Thoxine absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. Contains no chloroform or harmful drugs. Children like it. Remember—relief within 15 minutes from coughs or sore throat, or your money back. 35c, 60c, $1.00 bottles. All druggists, Adv.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

Radio is to combine music and drama in an attempt to present something a little different than the usual run.

Selecting the term "Lyric Drama" as descriptive of the series, WEAF-NBC is making plans to present "The Lyric Drama" with music by Grieg, as the opener on December 16. A cast of radio actors will take part, with music by a 25-piece orchestra.

Billie Jones and Ernie Hare, veterans of radio since 1922, when they started as the Happiness Boys, sign off their present WJZ-NBC series Christmas night.

LENZ INCREASES LEAD IN BRIDGE

Culbertson Calls Strategy So Far As Mainly Defensive

trump; east pass; south three hearts; west pass; north three no trump, the contract.

The Rival Arguments

Lenz took six tricks. Culbertson followed argued Jacoby failed to open with the two intermediary bids of the "official" system and that Lenz was misled as to his partner's strength. Lenz and Jacoby retorted Jacoby's holdings were a bit below the requirements of the "official" system. Culbertson followers argued that under the Culbertson system a little slam contract would have been bid as follows: South one diamond; north three no trump; south five hearts; north six no trump.

It took some lead-placing the typical Lenz deduction to make six tricks. He put Culbertson in toward the end of the hand so that west had to lead away from the king, Jack and eight of spades. The ace, queen and ten in Lenz' hand all took tricks.

The 53rd hand of the series gave Mrs. Culbertson a two-hand rubber of which she played both hands. She was forced to bid by two take-out doubles, or informatory doubles made by her husband.

The hand:
Lenz North
S-Q J 9 8 6 5 3
H-9 7 4
D-10
C-7 6

Culbertson Mrs. Culbertson
(West) (East) Dealer
S-None S-10 7 4 2
H-A K 10 8 5 3 H-J
D-K Q 6 5 D-A 8 3
C-A J 5 C-Q 10 9 4 3

Jacoby South
S-A K
H-Q 6 2
D-9 7 4 2
C-K 8 2

East and west vulnerable; north and south not vulnerable. The bidding: East pass, south one no trump; east pass; south pass; west double; north pass; east three clubs; south pass; west three clubs; south pass; west five clubs, the contract.

Culbertson, holding "four plus" honor tricks, as he terms them, and a blank in the suit bid by the opponents was well justified in compelling his partner to bid her best suit and later in going to a game bid himself. Jacoby led the ace of spades.

ready for the use of power, when they get it.

They will "assure Nordic dominance," whatever that may be, and with Fascist enthusiasm and thoroughness, would even go to the extent of sterilizing undesirable races, forbidding inter-marriage calculated to injure the Nordic strain.

Nordic supremacy may come some time, and it may not. It did not come at Verdun when the French, "mixture of Latin and Nordic blood, held fast, and subsequently collected the Young plan money.

THE CONTRACT BRIDGE battle rages furiously, and brings out this fact, encouraging to second, third and tenth-class contract players.

There is, it seems, such a thing as a "psychological bid," based not on sound play, but on the desire to offend, amaze and paralyze your opponent. Poor players, that bid offhand, two of a suit, which is a "command" bid without having "tops," can explain to a raging partner that it was a "psychological" bid.

driving his truck, owned by the P. Milliron Transfer company of East Liverpool, north on the hill near Eagleton Glens, four miles south of Salem. One bandit pointed a revolver at him, forcing him to stop while the other stepped onto the back of the truck and immediately began unloading groceries into another car.

After obtaining a large load of groceries and other merchandise the bandits are reported by Moore to have ordered him to drive toward Salem. On his arrival here he reported to police who communicated with county authorities at Lisbon.

Probe Other Burglaries

Sheriff W. J. Barlow and his staff of deputies today were active in investigations of two burglaries occurring on the Clarkson-Fredericktown rd. and another on the Cox highway, near Lisbon.

The home of Fred Hostettler was robbed of an automobile robe, two gold watches, a mantle clock, silk dress and other personal property valued at more than $200 while three automobile tires were stolen from the garage in the rear of the T. F. Flint home, adjacent to Hostettler's house.

Thieves also looted the highway stand owned by J. S. Rupert on the Cox highway but were frightened off before they could escape with large quantities of fruit, vegetables and other goods which they had piled by the roadside.

Rupert, awakened by an alarm system extending from his home to the stand, fired three shots at the thieves as they were standing by the highway. None of the shots took effect, the thieves escaping in an automobile.

Burleigh Grimes Goes To Chicago In Trade For Hack Wilson

DETHRONED KING OF SWAT TO BE SENT TO CARDS

Final Arrangements For Deal Expected To Be Completed Today

CLEVELAND INDIANS SEEK RALPH KRESS

Browns Refuse Trade Offer; Want Averill For Shortstop

By WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Burleigh Grimes, pitching hero of the 1931 world series, may be wearing a Chicago Cub uniform next season, and Hack Wilson, dethroned home run king of the major leagues, today appeared certain of becoming a member of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

A trade involving the spitball hurler who pitched the Cardinals to two victories in their world series triumph over the Athletics last autumn and Wilson, was a possibility today as the National and American leagues went into the second day of their annual meetings.

It was reliably reported last night that the Cubs had just about decided to make a cash deal with Brooklyn, when the Cardinals came up with a three-way proposition, offering either Grimes, Ernie Osnat or George Watkins, outfielders, for Wilson and cash in varying amounts.

Manager Rogers Hornsby and President William L. Veeck of the Cubs are said to favor the Grimes deal.

While the Cubs appeared to be unshaking their player deal tangles, the Cleveland Indians were still having trouble. The Indians want Ralph Kress of the St. Louis Browns and are willing to give Eddie Morgan, a .350 hitter, but rather indifferent fielding first baseman, for him.

The Browns, however, do not care so much about Morgan, but would be glad to have Earl Averill, the Indians' star outfielder with whom Cleveland is not willing to part.

The radio broadcasting problem, which has promised to be troublesome, was left as is. The American league adopted a resolution under which no club may sign radio contracts for 1933 until the question is threshed out.

Harris Re-Signed
The managerial lineup was completed yesterday when Stanley (Bucky) Harris signed a one-year contract to continue as pilot of the Detroit Tigers.

Vice presidents of both leagues were re-elected. Frank J. Navin, owner of the Detroit club continuing in that position in the American league, and Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh club remaining as vice president in the National.

The two leagues were to wind up their own business today, and will meet jointly tomorrow.

Flowers for Six-Day Victors

After pushing their bicycles around the track at Madison Square Garden, New York, for six days and nights, thinking they were going nowhere, Alfred Letourner (left) and Marcel Guimbretiere, the French "Red Devil" team, finally did get somewhere when they won the long grind. They are shown with the floral offerings they received from admirers after they had been declared winners. Their final score was 2,646 miles, nine laps and six hundred and forty-seven points. They stole the winning lap in the last hour of the frantic race.

$400,000 Gate Expected When Army, Navy Clash Saturday

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—This 32nd football clash between Army and Navy, Saturday ought to be a bit more like the 30 they played before the famous "break" of 1927.

Their charity engagement here a year ago was fought under some what artificial conditions and at least a part of the glamor that used to surround Army-Navy duels was lacking.

It should be different this time. The two service academies by no means have patched up their differences over eligibility standards and their coming battle was arranged solely in the interests of charity, yet it should be much like the spectacular games of other years.

Last year the game was arranged late in the season as a sort of afterthought, but this time the rival coaches have known since early October that a game would be played. That gave each a chance to "point" for the other and there has been strong evidence that Navy, at least, has been improving steadily and reached top form for the season last week when they toppled Penn, 6-0.

Army, on the other hand, played its best football against Notre Dame, Nov. 28, and there appears to be some doubt whether the Cadets again can flash so brilliant a game.

So far 73,000 tickets for the clash have been sold with cash in hand amounting to about $370,000. If the remaining 10,000 tickets, now on public sale, are disposed of the "gate" will pass the $400,000 mark.

Yarosz To Battle Moinett Thursday
EAST LIVERPOOL, Dec. 9.—For the first time in four months, Teddy Yarosz of Monaca, Ray Foutts' clever welterweight, will don the gloves Thursday night in the feature 10-round scrap of a program at the Eagles' auditorium.

Yarosz is scheduled to meet Jimmy Moinett of Alliance, a promising youngster, who battled the Monaca in a close tiff at Alliance. Yarosz' speed and boxing ability make him a favorite over Moinett.

In the six-round semi-final Kenny Eavis of East Liverpool will meet Young Terry of Akron.

Eastern College Teams In Tourney
NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The east's second charity elimination football tournament drew the teams of Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Princeton to the Yankee stadium today.

Pairings for the two preliminary games of 24 minutes each were to be announced a half hour before game time. Winners of these two preliminary contests then were to match strength in the final, also limited to 24 minutes.

Limbering Up
One's muscles have to be in perfect working order if one is to make a successful job of handling the wheel of a speedboat that is hurtling through the water at over 100 miles an hour. That is why Gar Wood, speedboat king of America, is keeping in trim by sculling on Indian Creek, Miami, Fla., where he will soon make an attempt to wrest the world's record from Kaye Don, of England. Wood says he has the motors of his Miss America tuned up to make 140 miles an hour.

THEATER Attractions

"SMART WOMEN," starring Rob Ames, Mary Astor and Edward Everett Horton, is the attraction today at the State theater.

Ames is seen as a young husband of Miss Astor who becomes so infatuated with the blond Peggy, enacted by Neil Francis, that the wife becomes a thing of the past. How the smart young wife attempts to get her husband back, falls in love herself, and is the cause of Peggy becoming attracted by a nobleman is told in a clever plot that proves pleasing entertainment. The cast is very well chosen.

"THE RUNAROUND," all technical comedy, starring Mary Brian, Geoffrey Kerr, Johnny Hines and Marie Prevost is the Grand's feature today.

The story has to do with a millionaire playboy who gets bored with the clubman life he has been leading. He wants to shake off his lethargy and deliberately plans to become interested in a showgirl who, too, would like to change her mode of living, but only with a bona-fide proposition. He plots to marry her. She plots to marry him. They "frame" each other. And then, each unknown to the other, falls in love, honestly and sincerely.
